send thee, Greeley, words of rheer, Thou bravest, truest, best of men; For I have marked thy strong career, As traced by thy own sturdy pen; I've seen thy struggles with the fees,

That dared thee to the desperate fight, And loved to watch thy goodly blows Don't for the cause thou deen at the right

Thou'st dared to stand against the wrong When many faitered by thy side; In thy strength inet dared be strong,

Nor on another's arm reited; Thyown bold thoughts thou'st dared to think Thou own great purpose avowed;

And none have ever seen the shrink From the fierce surges of the crowd. Thou, all unaided and aione, Didst take thy way in life's young years

With no kind hand clasped in thy own, No gentle voice to southe thy tears, But thy high heart no power could tame. And thou hast never ceased to feel Within thy velns a sacred flame

That turned thy Iron nerves to steel I know that thou art not exempt From all the weakness of earth. I'or passion come to rouse and tempt,

The truest souls of mortal birth. But then hast well fulfilled thy trust, in apite of love and hope and fear, And c'en the tempest's thunder gust But clears thy spirit's atmosphere. Thou still art in thy manhood's prime,

Still forenost bold thy fellow-men, Though in each year of all thy time Thou hast compressed threescore and the may cach blossed sympathy, Breathed on thee with a tear and sich A sweet flower in thy pathway le,
